The Mission

The mission of the Webber-Camden Neighborhood Organization is to help ensure that the Webber-Camden neighborhood continues as a viable city community and expresses the values of its diverse population.

The Organization will identify, use and seek a wide range of resources, encourage mutually beneficial partnerships and provide opportunity for resident participation to accomplish that mission.

The Organization will implement programs and initiatives in areas such as, but not limited to, housing, community development, youth and families, education and public safety to ensure that Webber-Camden continues to be a quality neighborhood of choice.

The Vision

The vision of Webber-Camden as:

A clean, safe, law abiding neighborhood where residents live and work together in an atmosphere of respect and consideration.

A neighborhood with quality affordable housing where pride of ownership is evident in well maintained single family and rental properties.

A neighborhood that nurtures children, participates in their social development, encourages their academic achievement and celebrates their accomplishments.

A neighborhood that provides support for those who need it and searches for and diligently uses resources wisely to benefit its residents.

A neighborhood that honors the contributions of art, music and recreation and encourages both participation and appreciation.

A community that exhibits concern for the natural environment and exercises wisdom in planning for growth and development.

A community that defines itself as residential, proud, diverse, multigenerational, safe and sustainable.

ABOUT WEBBER-CAMDEN NEIGHBORHOOD

Narrative:

Webber-Camden Neighborhood Organization's (WCNO) Neighborhood Revitalization Program (NRP) Action Plan written and approved in 1997 spoke to the intent of residents to support their neighborhood as it grew in the NRP process and sustain the neighborhood as part of a vital community.

The plan included strategies to address concerns existing at the time it was written. However, these strategies did not, nor could they be expected to, address future challenges the neighborhood would face in the progression of urban evolution.

The 2000 Census defined Webber-Camden as a neighborhood of 5,676 persons of which 1,035 were under the age of 18 years. There were 2,175 households; 1,620 of those were households with earnings beyond Social Security income or other supplemental revenues. The median household income was $33,717; $4,000 lower than the $37,974 median income of Minneapolis. There were 230 families that received public assistance and 315 received retirement income. There were 175 families living in poverty and 170 of those had children under the age of 18 years.

In 2000, Webber-Camden was predominately White (2,690), with 1,651 Black residents and 691 Asian individuals.

Webber-Camden is a neighborhood of mostly single family dwellings; 1,440 of the 2,235 units are single family homes with detached garages. The balance of the housing units is duplexes with a smattering of structures with three units or more. In 2000, there were 145 units in apartment buildings of up to nine units, and four buildings owned by the Minneapolis Public Housing Authority and Project for Pride in Living that held a total of 280 units. Half of the houses in Webber-Camden were built in 1939 or earlier. In 2000, Webber-Camden had 690 units, including single family houses, renting for $500 to $779 a month.

When Webber-Camden developed its NRP Phase I Neighborhood Action Plan (NAP), the neighborhood had three traditional churches, three schools, one park and a stretch of the Minneapolis Grand Rounds known as Webber Parkway as amenities. The Minneapolis Plan identifies the neighborhood as having one commercial corridor, Lyndale Avenue North, and two commercial nodes, one at 42nd and Fremont Avenues North and the other at 42nd and Lyndale. 44th Avenue North is an east-west transportation corridor with a mix of commercial buildings and a concentration of apartment buildings between Fremont and Humboldt.

Webber-Camden's Phase I NAP focused on public safety, housing, the environment and programs related to youth and family; it allocated $37,000 to build the Hamilton School playground and gave $29,000 to Patrick Henry High School for a computer lab. An additional $5,000 was used to encourage residents to take computer classes at the new lab. Webber-Camden participated with other Camden neighborhoods to propose a new community center for Webber Park.

In 2000, the Webber-Camden Board contracted with the Folwell Neighborhood Association for Implementation Support of the Phase I NAP. In 2001, they reallocated funds within the strategies of the NAP to better focus on evolving neighborhood priorities.

WCNO NRP Phase II

Plans for a Webber Park community center did not go forward; however, in 2001 the neighborhood gave $10,000 to the Webber Library to study community needs, participation and the feasibility of continuing library services at that location. In 2002, Webber-Camden partnered with the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board (MPRB) to initiate and fund a new playground with cutting edge equipment at Webber Park. The neighborhood invested $125,000 of its NRP dollars in this important community building project.

Come Home to Camden: In 2003, in partnership with the Folwell Neighborhood Association, Webber-Camden funded community-wide events under the banner of Come Home to Camden to promote the positives of Webber-Camden. Come Home to Camden events and programs included the Victory 10-5-2K race (with the Minnesota Distance Running Association – MDRA) that annually attracts participation by 1,500 runners and residents, the first and only Mississippi Log Boom, and the Otter Trotter, a 5K race along the Mississippi River through North Mississippi Regional Park. Other Come Home to Camden events included the 4th Ward Senior Resource Fair, Blue Ribbon House and Garden awards, and a Secret Garden Tour.

WCNO continued to reach out to residents with newsletters and a community based website, webbercamden.org. WCNO is a member of the 4th Precinct CARE Task Force and began the Camden Old House Club that focuses on home maintenance and historically appropriate renovation of the hundreds of vintage homes in the neighborhood.

In 2004, North Minneapolis neighborhoods entered a period of change: property values went up at a rate slightly higher than the national average. The first round of residential property exploitation called “flipping” manifested in the Webber-Camden market. As housing prices rose, more properties went up for sale as older residents moved to assisted living and others left for the suburbs. Investor acquisitions of the still affordable houses resulted in more rental property. Houses that had been owner occupied now sheltered families seeking a safer environment and better maintained housing stock.

While there was a shift in resident occupancy, other events contributed to more changes in the neighborhood; in 2001, the Super Valu grocery that had been a community landmark at 44th and Humboldt closed. A new grocer arrived only to leave what they described as “a declining market” in 2004. Other business enterprises along 44th Avenue North closed leaving empty buildings in their wake. The commercial node at 42nd and Fremont lost an anchor bakery that left four store fronts vacant. In the fall of 2005, violent crime came to Webber-Camden when a clerk was shot and killed during a robbery in a convenience store at Dowling and Fremont. During the following spring, a resident was killed by members of the Tre Tre Crips, a violent youth gang that had its roots in the growing North Minneapolis youth gang culture, while returning home from work. These and other events introduced the neighborhood to the changing landscape of urban migration and transient criminal activity.

In 2006, property values hit a historic high. Owners were encouraged to refinance their homes to pay for everything from credit card debt to new cars, student loans and home remodeling. There was nothing that home equity financing would not pay for and interest rates were lower than at any time in recent memory. No one talked about the dangers of adjustable rate mortgages and borrowing money was never easier.

Houses on the market were selling - some of them to investors that used highly accessible funds to exploit the housing market for millions of dollars in profits. And in late 2006, the first indications of a market readjustment became apparent. It started slowly, but by late 2007/early 2008 Webber-

WCNO NRP Phase II

Camden became the third hardest hit neighborhood in the Camden Community with defaults on home mortgages and subsequent foreclosures.

The reality was chilling! Houses went vacant on every block. Property values dropped to levels that were even lower than the first round of appreciation that occurred in 1998.

In the eleven years since the start of NRP Phase I, there have been significant changes in every demographic of the neighborhood except the geographic boundaries which remain Penn Avenue to Washington Avenue and Dowling Avenue to 45th Avenue North. 2000 census statistics became obsolete descriptors of the neighborhood in 2006 when Webber-Camden was impacted by devastating economic and housing-related events. In this changed environment, Webber-Camden has reached the end of its NRP Phase I funding and must address the new issues and concerns that are present today and will be present for many years to come.

Participation Agreement

Organization:

Eight members of the Board of Directors guide the work of WCNO. The Organization is at the end of its eleven years NRP Phase I Action Plan. The Plan was implemented according to the guidelines established by the community in the Plan, evaluated on a regular basis, and modified as needed to accomplish the neighborhood's identified goals and objectives. The strategies of the plan were based on the concepts of partnership and the delivery of proactive programs and services. It is anticipated that the NRP Phase II Neighborhood Action Plan will follow similar guidelines.

The Board of Directors will continue as the guiding entity for WCNO's NRP Phase II Neighborhood Action Plan (NAP). Residents will be recruited to join the Board, as permitted by the By-laws and to become members of a NRP Phase II Implementation Committee for both Plan development and implementation. Residents will be recruited beginning in October 2008 with the goal of developing the Phase II NAP during the winter months, with neighborhood approval being sought at a Special Meeting in March of 2009.

Every effort will be made to have the composition of the Implementation Committee represent the diversity of the neighborhood within a core committee of not less than ten and not more than 15 members. If ten members, three of the members should be African American, five members should be Caucasian, two members would be Asian or other as described by census demographics. Among those members, three should be renters and one should be a business representative, the rest would be property owners and residents. This composition will be the goal of the WCNO.

The Chair of the Implementation Committee is appointed by the President of the Board of Directors of WCNO. The Chair of the Implementation Committee (IC) is a member of the board and will report directly to that body. IC has the responsibility to demonstrate the will of residents faithfully to the Board of Directors. The Board of Directors is staffed by an Executive Director. Based on information the Board of Directors has the final authority to present the Plan to the community for approval.

Outreach:

WCNO publishes a newsletter, The Webber Wire, six times a year. The Webber Wire is distributed via direct mail and delivered to each household in Webber-Camden neighborhood. Information regarding the NRP Phase II planning process, invitations to participate in the process, and progress reports on plan development will be included in that publication. This same information will also be posted in Webber Park, the primary meeting site in the neighborhood.

Invitations to participate will be broadcast to all e-mail contacts (600+) for WCNO. Participants will be recruited from active block clubs and personal invitations to business owners. Information about the NRP planning process and the development of NRP Phase II for Webber-Camden will be sent to all rental property owners of record according to the City of Minneapolis Rental Property data base.

A neighborhood-wide survey will be used to ask about quality of life issues in the neighborhood and other concerns that may emerge as part of the IC's plan development process. The Implementation Committee will consider gathering information through focus groups and small gatherings of residents on specific topics.

WCNO's website, www.webbercamden.org, will publish regular updates and provide the opportunity for residents to post comments, complete surveys and vote on specific ideas or programs that may become elements of the Plan. This capacity already exists on the website.

Plan Development:

The IC will be convened in October 2008 to set the process and calendar for recruitment and plan development. The Phase II NRP will share many of the program and service areas of NRP Phase I in terms of community outreach, economic development and housing.

During the process of plan development, the Executive Director, as the contracted support staff for WCNO, and other full-time staff, will support the IC and IC will regularly report and recommend to the Board of Directors as the planning for Phase II proceeds. Staff will proceed with implementation of the Plan approved by the neighborhood and the WCNO Board of Directors.

Plan Approval:

Staff will document the process of Plan development through sign-in sheets, meeting notices, electronic responses and document responses. Staff will write the draft plan based on community input and at the direction of IC. Drafts of the Plan will be available on line and a summary of the Plan will be available to every household through direct distribution in the community newspaper as an insert.

A full draft of the plan will be available between the hours of 8-5 on weekdays at the WCNO office, 1206 37th Avenue North and at Webber Park during their regular business hours.

The neighborhood-wide vote will be taken at a special meeting for that purpose according to the voting process described in the By- laws.

The Board of Directors will oversee the implementation of the plan development and approval process. The Board of Directors will ensure that the Participation Agreement has been followed and forward the approved plan to NRP.

Participation Agreement Outcomes

Notice and invitations to participate in Phase II NRP Plan development were included in the WCNO newsletters and on the webbercamden.org website. [

NRP Phase II Plan development activities and updates were agenda items for Board meetings.

A Webber-Camden Neighborhood Survey was distributed through block clubs, on line at webbercamden.org and at five focus group meetings. Response to the surveys distributed to random households was 46 surveys returned and 19 surveys completed on line.

Five focus group meetings were scheduled; four were well attended with 6 to 10 persons participating and one was cancelled.

Additionally a postcard short survey was distributed at the end of the planning process and 29 were returned.

The survey and focus group responses identified five primary areas of resident concern:

- More outreach to new residents and active recruitment for a broader volunteer base.
- Funding and support for economic development on commercial corridors and at nodes.
- Support for continuation of housing and housing maintenance programs.
- Community events that encourage family participation.
- Continued support for public safety initiatives and regulatory enforcement.

The time period for developing the Phase II NRP Plan coincided with a period of extreme stress in the neighborhood because of the foreclosure crisis, and a steady increase in the number of vacant and boarded houses.

WCNO NRP Phase II

Current trends related to housing, population and income since the 2000 Census; 2006

The changes in family structure and housing in Webber-Camden neighborhood that began in mid-1990 continue today. Housing: in 2000, 87.4% of the housing units in Webber-Camden were homesteaded according to the City Assessor. Today 69.8% of the housing units are homesteaded, a 17% change with most of the involved properties entering the rental market.

The percentage of housing units for sale in the neighborhood today is estimated to be above 6 percent and the vacancy rate for both homesteaded and rental property has risen significantly. As the number of owner occupants has decreased, so has property maintenance. Both of these conditions directly affect property values. In the 2000 Census, the median housing values in Webber-Camden lagged $41,000 behind the city.

This gap may have narrowed slightly but many home sales in the past three years have been multiple investor resale's based on manipulated appraisals. Webber-Camden neighborhood is one of the north side neighborhoods experiencing extremely high levels of foreclosure. A bright spot on the housing horizon is a slight increase of young, first time homebuyers investing in decent to well maintained and affordable properties.

The 2006 race and age statistics for Webber-Camden neighborhood would resemble those in the 2000 Census. There would, however, be a significant increase in the number of families with children living in poverty. The percentage today is probably in the mid-twenty's. Urban neighborhoods in Minneapolis and other cities have experienced the increase of families living in poverty as a result of changes in the housing market, and the increase of rental property in single-family homes.

Current trends related to housing, population and income since the 2000 Census; 2008

From updated demographic information provided for Mission Insite the following analysis and trends are for the period 2000 – 2008:

The population of Webber-Camden decreased 8.8% to 5,378 persons and the decline is expected to continue thru 2013 with an additional 3.3% decrease. The number of households is also declining. The 2008 data indicated that 68% of Webber-Camden housing units were owner occupied and 32% were rentals. The projections for 2013 indicate a rise in the owner occupied properties.

The average age of the population is rising to 37.2 years from 33.3 and expected to continue to rise in the future. The number of children aged 0-6 is projected to decline as are school children aged 8-19. Adults over the age of 55 are expected to increase putting families and empty nesters aged 35 to 54 at 28% of the neighborhood population.

The average household income rose to $50,903 in 2008 which is 68% of the State of Minnesota average income of $74617. Incomes are expected to continue to increase through 2013 to $56,236. Forty two percent of WCNO's population was living with a household income of $35,000 or less. Trends indicate that by 2013, 27% of the population will be living with a household income of $35,000 or less.

In 2008 12% of WCNO's population was Asian, 29% was Black/African American and 45.9% were White, Non Hispanic. In 2013 trends predict that the top three racial and ethnic groups in the community will be Asian (11%), Black/African American (27%) and White (48%)
