Hawthorne Mission Statement

The Hawthorne Neighborhood Council seeks to improve the quality of life in the Hawthorne neighborhood through empowering the residents in order that they can address the physical, cultural, social and economic needs of the community.

About the Hawthorne Neighborhood

The Hawthorne neighborhood is located in North Minneapolis and is bounded by the Mississippi River to the east, Emerson Avenue to the west, West Broadway Avenue to the south, and Lowry Avenue to the north.

Named after the American writer, Nathaniel Hawthorne, the Hawthorne Neighborhood Council (formerly known as the Hawthorne Area Community Council, or HACC), was incorporated in January 1980. The grassroots organizers who founded the organization sought to address the social and economic needs of the neighborhood residents. From its humble beginning as an organization with limited financial resources, HNC has undergone significant program and structural transformation in order to effectively create and nurture comprehensive programs that focus on bettering the community.

HNC works to help revitalize the neighborhood through housing opportunities and assistance, business development, and services to families. Four major committees have been in place for many years addressing the issues that residents have deemed most vital in affecting change throughout the neighborhood. These committees include Housing, Crime Prevention and Family Safety, Business, and Environment. The Hawthorne neighborhood relies heavily on a small but committed group of volunteers that execute a great deal of the work as outlined by these committees. HNC recognizes the need to expand the number of individuals involved in working on neighborhood goals. To this effort, a fifth committee, Community and Communications, has been designed to increase HNC's visibility as a source of neighborhood information and to act as a catalyst for implementing positive change.

Although Hawthorne shares many of the issues and attributes that other North Minneapolis neighborhoods do, it is also unique in several ways. The goals and work that are driven by HNC must reflect those differences. For instance, Hawthorne boasts one of the largest business districts among Northside neighborhoods. For some time, the major corridors saw a considerable decrease in the number and quality of businesses operating in the neighborhood. Currently, the atmosphere is ripe for reinvestment in this area. City and County entities and developers have recognized the potential for growth in Hawthorne (and North Minneapolis in general) and have committed themselves to attracting and growing new and reputable businesses that will be beneficial to the entire area. Realizing that there is a rich and storied history regarding existing businesses in Hawthorne, some resources have been dedicated to help these businesses improve the appearance of their storefronts and expand their current operations. In addition to North 2nd Street and West Broadway Avenue, Lowry Avenue will hopefully become another viable corridor with a mix of small businesses and medium density housing. HNC has entered into a partnership with leadership from the Jordan, McKinley, Folwell, and Cleveland neighborhoods that focuses on eliminating barriers that would deter developers and private investors from being able to establish themselves on Lowry Avenue.

Hawthorne's housing market is different from other Northside neighborhoods. While there are soundly built new and existing buildings, there are also a disproportionate number of structures that are in serious decline. Sub-standard best describes the bulk of this housing. Lack of maintenance by property owners (both owner occupied and absentee) has resulted in a continuing downward spiral. Prompted by infomercials claiming great wealth through real-estate investments, this neighborhood has been repeatedly preyed upon by investors. Not all investors are or were predatory. However, during the housing boom which occurred earlier in the decade, properties were purchased and flipped without improvements or with minimal shoddy workmanship. All housing market values were erroneously inflated by these sales, making this area prime for mortgage scams. As the housing market began to collapse and foreclosures rose, the neighborhood was overwhelmed with vacant structures (boarded and un-boarded), of which the majority were investment properties. Most of the 72 blocks comprising Hawthorne had from one to five shuttered structures. Determining who owned or was responsible for maintaining and securing these sites moved slowly, leaving plenty of time for thieves to strip and damage these properties. Low home ownership (less than 40%) and limited long term tenants also contributed to neighborhood destabilization. HNC's Housing Committee has not lost sight of one primary goal: to create home ownership opportunities. Working with partners in government and the non-profit sector, some headway has been made in adding to the home ownership numbers. In addition, the committee has directed that new housing and rehabs constructed by the development partners must meet Green Community standards or better.

Neighborhood Demographics

Based on Census 2000 figures, Hawthorne's ethnic makeup changed significantly between 1980 and the year 2000. All ethnic groups except Caucasians and American Indians increased in number. The Caucasian population dropped from 85 percent of total population in 1980 to 19 percent in the year 2000. During that same period, the African American population increased from 5 to 50 percent, and the Asian population grew from less than 1 percent to 17 percent. It is expected that Census 2010 will reflect an even greater change in the diversity of Hawthorne's residents.

The Census 2000 figures also indicated that the number of children and adolescents in Hawthorne increased by almost 30 percent, and the school aged population in particular (5 to 17 years old) grew by 93 percent. These same figures also show that Hawthorne saw nearly 3 percent fewer adults and 60 percent fewer senior residents than in 1980. As a result, the total population decreased slightly. The neighborhood has an average of 3.4 people residing in each household with a median income of $21,865 per year.

The number of housing units in Hawthorne decreased for various reasons by 608 between 1980 and 2000. The vacant housing rate was 5.8 percent in 1980, reached its highest level in 1990 at 15 percent and dropped back to 8.8 percent in the year 2000.

Hawthorne's owner and renter vacancy rates were consistently higher than in city wide totals between 1980 and 2000 though both neighborhood and city followed the same trends for both figures peaking in 1990 and falling significantly in 2000.

Between 1980 and 2000, Hawthorne's median housing values were significantly below the Minneapolis figure, increasing from more than $29,000 to almost $50,000. The difference was accentuated because median house values declined more in the neighborhood. This statistic, in particular, will show a dramatic change once new and official figures become available. Hawthorne currently has some of the lowest home values in the entire city.

Housing costs also reflect a substantially higher percentage of household income than in the City of Minneapolis. In 2000, median housing costs (including mortgage) were nearly 50 percent of median household income in Hawthorne as compared to a citywide estimate of approximately 30 percent. From 1980 to 2000, costs as a proportion of income climbed in the neighborhood by 10 percent while the city reflected an increase of only 3 percent.

Hawthorne's median gross rent as a percentage of median household income was consistently higher than Minneapolis' between 1980 and 2000. The gap between the neighborhood and the city widened during this period from 5 percent in 1980 to 11 percent in 1990 and 13 percent in 2000. The number of families in Hawthorne living in poverty continues to be significantly higher than in the rest of the city.

Phase II Planning

The Process

Phase I was developed with neighborhood input by the Phase I Steering Committee and was executed according to plan with some modifications to better accomplish the goals and objectives of the Phase I Action Plan. HNC's Board of Directors (with 18 seats), guides the work of the organization from staff to committee members and volunteers. The Board recognizes HNC's Phase II Steering Committee as the primary entity responsible for developing Phase II plans, goals, and implementation processes. NRP Phase II goals are similar to those outlined in Phase I.

The Steering Committee began recruiting members in June 2009 with the goal of writing the plan by the end of 2010 and seeking neighborhood approval by February 2011. Membership has changed with time but has included neighborhood residents, Board members, business representatives, and members of local non-profit organizations.

Outreach

HNC and the Phase II Steering Committee sought input on the use of Phase II dollars from its residents and began planning a comprehensive outreach effort. The committee employed the organization's official website (www.hawthorneneighborhoodcouncil.org) to publicize upcoming meetings and to keep residents aware of news and events. The website was updated to include a functional link where residents could make comments and request information. HNC also has a Facebook page which was consistently updated with Phase II information. Recognizing that not all residents have easy access to the internet, the Hawthorne VIBE, the organization's official newsletter, was also used to publicize meetings and to conduct a neighborhood wide survey regarding Phase II planning.

Focus groups were conducted with the neighborhood's Hmong population and members of the Tawfiq Islamic Education Center. The Salvation Army agreed to provide surveys to Hawthorne residents using their services. Surveys were also conducted with members of Kwanzaa Church, Berean Missionary Baptist Church, New Bethel Baptist Church, 4th Precinct Police Officers, the Hawthorne Business District, and in a neighborhood wide mailing. HNC worked with staff at NCR (Neighborhood and Community Relations Department) and attempted to organize meetings with members of Iglesias Church and the Upper Midwest American Indian Center.

A neighborhood wide mailing was sent out to all residents, property and business owners inviting them to HNC's Annual Meeting held in September 2010. During this event, Phase II strategies were presented to the neighborhood. Each attendee had the opportunity to vote on which strategies they felt were of greatest and least importance. The results of this poll were used to further tailor the entire plan.

Participation from various constituencies of our community is evident in HNC's Phase II Action Plan. An ambitious and proactive plan has been developed to halt neighborhood decline and position Hawthorne for an impending resurgence of revitalization.

Additionally, the plan continues to embody the following vision statement outlined by community members many years ago and included in Phase I plans.

"Our vision is to draw together all available resources to improve the quality of life for the residents of the Hawthorne neighborhood. We will provide a forum for the Hawthorne residents, block clubs, workers, and business owners to come together with one another and with governmental agencies that are involved in the neighborhood to eliminate barriers to our vision. Our goal is to create a community of residents and business owners, with well-maintained properties, living and working with pride in a neighborhood that has earned a positive image.

We Value:

- The input, time, and talent of all the members of our community who are working to improve Hawthorne.
- The diversity of our Hawthorne family.
- The park, boulevards, and green spaces throughout our community.
- The unique and historic treasures of our neighborhood.
- The energies and heart of government employees who aid us in our mission.
- The quiet, unassuming neighbor who lives by the pledge of the first tenet of the Hippocratic Oath, "First, do no harm".

Therefore, we, the Hawthorne Neighborhood Council, on behalf of the residents and stakeholders of the Hawthorne neighborhood, present our plan for Phase II.
